

NJEA Convention November 8-9 at the Convention Center, Atlantic City

Featured Speaker: Holly Pietrucha: Best Practices in the Latin Classroom.

Special appearance by Professor Fred Mench, Stockton State University.

The Examined Life: Hellenic Studies in the Schools: An in-class and study abroad seminar.

Montclair State University

Classics Day 2007 - Thursday, Oct. 25, 9 A.M.-1:30 P.M. - Talks on the universal significance of myth, Roman inscriptions & social history, the ancient world on the big screen, ancient family life as portrayed in tragedy & comedy. Competition for 6-student school teams in mythology, Latin grammar, Roman culture & history. Contact Sally Garson, Institute for the Humanities (garsons@mail.montclair.edu).

Troy and Aeneas Revisited: Classics in the Middle School Curriculum (for teachers of literature, the social studies, art, humanities, and Latin), *Friday, Dec. 14, 9:00 A.M. - 1:00 P.M. - In this program we hope to continue and refine the discussions we began last year in a similar program. Contact Sally Garson, Institute for the Humanities (garsons@mail.montclair.edu).

Fall 2007:

Latin Literature of the Golden Age - Thursday, 4-6:30 P.M. (Dr. Sulo Asirvatham); selections from Augustan age writers, with special concentration on the /Aeneid/.

Caesar and the End of the Republic- Monday, 4-6:30 P.M. (Dr. Jean Alvares); selections from /Bellum Gallicum /and /Bellum Civile/, Special attention to the historical background and to how Caesar presents himself in his writing.

Spring 2008:

Latin Literature of the Silver Age - Thursday, 4-6:30 P.M (Dr. Victoria Larson); Latin reading selections tba.

Selected Topics in Mediterranean Archaeology: Roman Cities and Urban Life - Tuesday, 5:30-8:00 P.M (Dr. Deborah Chatr Aryamontri).; the topography and infrastructure of Roman cities, the principles of Roman city planning, the relevance of evidence from architecture, hydraulic & civil engineering, inscriptions, and coins for understanding ancient urban life.

The above-listed courses are available for either undergraduate or graduate credit.

For fuller details contact Tim Renner (rennert@mail.montclair.edu) or Jean Alvares (alvaresj@mail.montclair.edu).

Archaeological Institute of America (Northern New Jersey Society) Fall 2007 Lecture Series
5 PM in the Cohen Lounge, Dickson Hall, Montclair State University (parking in the adjacent Red Hawk Deck;
For information on lectures, please contact, germans@mail.montclair.edu, 973-655-4419)

Thursday, October 11 th	" Ancient Egyptian Mummies " Salima Ikram, American University, Cairo
Tuesday, November 6 th ,	" Sex Sells but Who's Buying? Erotic Imagery on Attic Vases " Kathleen Lynch, University of Cincinnati,
Wednesday, December 5 th	" The Archaeology of Slavery and Freedom in Early New York " Christopher Matthews, Hofstra University

Metropolitan Museum Art Haven't made it to the Met yet to see the new Greek and Roman Galleries? Well until you do, check out the Met's website at www.metmuseum.org. There are videos, audio files, podcasts and lots of great information. It might be fun for a "further learning" project for your students.